To strengthen the lives of those in need by giving help that empowers and hope that lasts.
Dear Friends,

With a profound sense of gratitude, it is my joy to present this annual report for Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Washington. Your support of this ministry of hope and compassion is a powerful testament to the conviction that we have a responsibility to care for one another with kindness and love.

“Blessed are the open hands that embrace those in need and helps them: they are hands that bring hope,” says Pope Francis in his Message for the First World Day of the Poor. As we have received such saving hope ourselves in the merciful love of Jesus, he adds, so are we called to turn to “all those who stretch out their hands and plead for our help and solidarity. They are our brothers and sisters, created and loved by the one Heavenly Father.”

As you read this annual report, you will see how generously and fruitfully that call has been answered in our local Church. Behind all the financial figures and data are the faces of so many people whose lives are brighter today thanks to the dedicated efforts of Catholic Charities and the benefactors who make it all possible. Through the 58 programs operated in this area by this remarkable ministry, each year more than 142,000 women, men, and children from every background find much-appreciated material and spiritual help, including food assistance, housing, health care, immigration and refugee assistance, services for persons with developmental disabilities, job training, and more.

Each time we reach out our hand so that someone in need can encounter the consolation and love of Christ, we are restoring hope – or perhaps inspiring hope in them for the first time – and providing them the opportunity to build a better future for themselves and their families. By working together, we can continue to make a profound positive difference in the human family.

May the fruit of your generosity continue to provide the loving presence of the Lord in our community through the work of Catholic Charities.

Asking God’s blessings on you and your families, I am,

Archbishop of Washington
We reached more than 142,000 people in the DC and Maryland region last year alone.

Last year, we worked with 142,715 men, women, and children. As you can see, some of those services come in the form of highly intensive, long-term care for a smaller number of people, like our work with individuals living with developmental disabilities. Other programs, such as our Southern Maryland Food Bank and low-barrier shelters see a high number of people over shorter periods of time. We do our best to capture an accurate picture of how many individual people we serve—sometimes it can be challenging, as many of our clients receive multiple services from more than one program, or are served repeatedly throughout the year.

Highlights

- 6,846 people volunteered with Catholic Charities last year.
- We served 5 million meals to those in need.
- More than $18.3 million in pro bono services were provided directly to our clients.
- We distributed more than 1.1 million lbs. of food to local pantries.

Made possible because...

- 8,582 individuals made donations to Catholic Charities in the last year.

Kyana knew she had to take things one step at a time when her husband was diagnosed with stage 4 colon cancer last year. She and her husband were raising three children, with a fourth on the way when they received the devastating diagnosis. As the family began to adjust to their new “normal” everyday life became a side act to the main show that was caring for a loved one with cancer.

But as time went on the challenges grew, Kyana quit her steady job as a sales manager to care for her husband full time. Shortly thereafter their financial struggles magnified. Paying their rent became harder and harder, until one day they were facing eviction. The family was referred to the Catholic Charities Southeast Family Center and received rental assistance from a Capital One Bank grant and later through the Emergency Rental Assistance Program. The family was able to stay in their home. The ability to stay in their home during this trying time was a huge relief, and one less stressor for the family.

But the care from Catholic Charities didn’t stop there. The compassionate staff welcomed the family with open arms and made sure Kyana, her husband, and their children ages 11-, 8-, and 2-years-old knew they had extra support to help them through this difficult time. When Christmas came around, the Senior Program Manager and staff at the Southeast Family Center made sure there were plenty of presents under the tree.

Sadly, Kyana’s husband lost his battle to cancer in August. He was able to remain in his home, spend precious time with his family, and meet his youngest child, born in February. Kyana has returned to work, and as she continues to care for her family she remains in touch with the staff at Catholic Charities, who have agreed to help with some burial costs for her husband.

TRANSITIONAL HOUSING PROGRAMS
LOW-BARRIER SHELTERS
EMERGENCY SHELTERS
Our Homeless and Housing programs are here to meet the needs of some of the region’s most vulnerable. Emergency low-barrier shelters meet the immediate need of a place to sleep, but many of our housing programs focus on a long-term goal of living independently.

Last year, from single individuals to families, Catholic Charities’ Homeless and Housing Services programs assisted 12,287.

1,500 — number of beds provided to homeless men, women, and children each night.

Our Rapid Rehousing and Transitional Housing programs in Washington, DC helped 130 families and 70 individuals via temporary rental assistance and case management services.
Philip came to Catholic Charities through one of our low-barrier shelters. He had been struggling with mental illness for years. Medications that were prescribed to him either didn’t work, or he refused to take them. He had lost touch with his family, lost his job, his home, even his identification.

Then one day in 2008, things changed. While undergoing an evaluation at the shelter, his mental health problems were flagged, and he was brought to Anchor Mental Health for additional evaluation. The professional and caring staff at Anchor were able to help Philip get the appropriate medication, he began seeing a psychiatrist, and started seeing changes for the better.

As his mental state improved Philip was able to move into his own apartment through the Fortitude Housing program. He credits the twice monthly visits by a Catholic Charities Community Support Specialist with helping him maintain this independent life. Part of the program includes check-ins to see how he is doing, ensure he is showing up to work, taking his medication, following through with his therapy, and ensuring his overall wellbeing.

Through Catholic Charities and the staff at Anchor, Philip was able to get a driver’s license. Our Supported Employment Program helped him find work, in fact one of his jobs is as a medical services courier with Catholic Charities. But what helped Philip the most, and what he is most grateful for, is Catholic Charities helped him get back in touch with his family.

Despite many of his family living right here in the DC area, years of struggle had made it nearly impossible for Philip to keep in contact with them. As he began working towards a healthier mind, he knew a key component was reconnecting with his family. Now he is living in his own apartment, working two jobs, and able to see his family. Most importantly, he was able to reconnect with his grandmother before she passed away.
"I can’t thank Catholic Charities enough for putting me in contact with my family."

DEDICATED SERVICES COORDINATOR
Supporting people from all walks of life is a cornerstone of Catholic Charities services, and our Developmental Disabilities programs are just another example of this commitment to serving those most in need. From our Child Development Center, all the way through our adult day programs and group housing we offer specialized care for every stage of life. These programs provide essential building blocks for future growth, development, and progress.

80 individuals participated in our Adult Day programs last year.

891 adults and children are helped through our Developmental Disabilities programs.

The Kennedy School has been providing life, vocational, and educational skills since 1959.

Last year, our Southern Maryland and Prince George’s County Employment Programs served 45.
When Christopher first came to Catholic Charities he relied on a Dynavox speech device and sign language to communicate with others. After he was paired with his current employment specialist from the Kennedy Institute, Christopher was overheard talking to himself in very clear, understandable, full sentences. Knowing that communicating verbally could open more doors for Christopher, his employment specialist worked with his parents, brother, and sister to develop a plan to eliminate the speech device, and become less reliant on sign language.

As the plan was put into action, Christopher’s family and employment specialist were thrilled to see the progress he was making. In the beginning, the Montgomery County Employment Program provided supported employment services and coached him to complete his duties that required verbal interactions.

As his confidence grew, and he used his verbal skills more and more, growth opportunities began to present themselves. He began helping lifeguards at the Rockville Municipal Swim Center teach the 4–6-year-old swimming class, he then transitioned over to volunteering with an adult day care agency that serves individuals with Alzheimer’s, where his kindness and hard work were greatly appreciated.

Today, Christopher continues to receive supported employment job coaching services from Kennedy Institute and has achieved total success in communicating verbally. He is a full-time, fully-benefitted federal employee at the NSA Bethesda Naval Base supporting the veterinary division. This past April, Christopher received the Maryland Association of Community Services Achievement Award for his professional accomplishments.
“Without the support of his family, Christopher would not be where he is today.”
Our Family, Parish, and Community Outreach programs bring together a formidable team of volunteers, parish ministries, and local organizations working towards transformational change. When individuals and families turn to the church we are there with social workers, food assistance, medical care, a place to stay, and much more. This work is primarily driven by our network of talented and skilled volunteers.

Last year, our volunteer force of 6,846 people contributed 112,667 hours.

1,464 people received coats distributed by the parish and school coat drive.

Our Prison Ministry Outreach provided information and referrals to 1,116 people.

Last year, these programs helped nearly 7,000.

Giving back is a family affair for the Kappaz’s, as their passion and generosity have impacted the lives of so many through their various business and philanthropic endeavors. Guided by their faith, the family has created a legacy of giving at Catholic Charities.

One example is the Michael H. Kappaz Workforce Development Program. Named for the family’s late patriarch, the program trains and certifies students in mechanical, electrical and job-site skills, and then places graduates with employers throughout the Washington metropolitan area. The training center is housed at the Spanish Catholic Center, a place very near and dear to the family.

For years this family has been answering the call of their faith to help those in the community less fortunate. From monetary donations, to speaking on behalf of the agency, volunteering, mentoring, promoting Catholic Charities, and much more, each and every member of the Kappaz family gives back.

The Kappaz family is a perfect example of living the faith. Their call to action comes not from serving those who are Catholic but rather because they themselves are Catholic.

We are truly blessed to be part of the work Catholic Charities does. Our roles as President and CEO, and Chairman of the Board of Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Washington continue to be an honor and a privilege. Each day we are fortunate to support some of the most dedicated people in the region as together we serve those most in need.

This year in particular has been filled with stories of inspiration and great rewards. We developed new partnerships within the community, saw incredible volunteers share their skills and passions with those most in need, and of course, witnessed countless success stories in our 58 programs across D.C and five Maryland counties.

As Pope Francis says, the Body of Christ can be seen “through charity and sharing, in the faces and persons of the most vulnerable.” This is why we, at Catholic Charities, strive every day serve those who are most vulnerable, and work to meet the needs of our community.

We know that many of the people who come to us in need are victims of circumstance, and struggling to find hope and compassion as they deal with housing, financial, family, or health issues. Through our dedicated staff and passionate volunteers, we continue in our mission of “Restoring Hope.”

Whether people seek help for legal issues, immigration services, crisis counseling, food and nutrition programs, refugee programs, low-cost health and dental care, or, as is often the case, people come to us seeking multiple services. This is why Catholic Charities has such success in the outcomes of those we serve and none of it would be possible without supporters such as yourself.

Our deepest prayers and thanks are with you and your family for including us in your life.

Msgr. John Enzler
President and CEO

R. Scott Pastrick
Chairman of the Board
