2019-2020 ANNUAL REPORT

Catholic Charities
ARCHDIOCESE OF WASHINGTON

Thank you for YOUR part in keeping hope alive!

Msgr. John J. Enzler
President & CEO

The lives of thousands of families were touched by the work of Catholic Charities during the year. One family reminded us so aptly of the great difference our work makes to others.

"It is the first time that I have received help from you," Iris wrote to us in June. Like many others, her family turned to Catholic Charities when faced with the devastating economic impact of the pandemic. Iris, her husband and children received food from our distribution. She was moved to send a note of thanks along with a photo of the food in her kitchen. "Thank you for the food," she wrote. "Bless you greatly for the help you give. ❤️"

Catholic Charities was a lifeline for Iris' family and so many others this year.

Robert Trone
Chairman of the Board

We also heard from a young supporter, who reminded us that "the darkest times bring out the best in people." This certainly was true of our staff, who rose from their own challenges in the pandemic to help others. And it was true of our donors and volunteers.

More than 8,500 people made contributions this year, which allowed us to provide food, shelter, medical care and other services to almost 193,000 people — an increase of more than 34 percent over last year — during one of the most challenging times in our agency's history.

As the young supporter so appropriately said, "Hope is still alive."

2019-2020 HIGHLIGHTS

9 large-scale community food distributions served the food insecure.

980,584 pounds of food — the equivalent of 1.2 million meals — were distributed by the Southern Maryland Food Bank.

87,785 SHARE Food Network packages were given to people in need.

18,417 people received food, diapers, financial assistance and referral services from the Montgomery County Family Center.

2,524 people were assisted by the Spanish Catholic Center food pantry.

“ Our message is one of solidarity. We stand with each and every person and family in crisis. We walk with them, we support them, and we do our best to help them.

Caring for those who are struggling and in need — regardless of their background, belief or circumstance — is what we do every day.

And we did it even in a year unlike any other. The number of free meals served in the past year increased significantly, first as a result of your generous response to the 2019 Virtual Food Drive and then in reaction to the COVID-19 economic crisis. A holiday season filled with activities contributed to a year-over-year increase in the number of volunteers sharing their time. Shelters were open 24/7 because of the pandemic, leading to an increase in the number of beds provided to the homeless each night. Through it all, care, compassion and hope were provided to more than 34 percent more people than in the previous year. And we did so thanks to you, our donors and volunteers.

Almost 193,000 people in Washington, D.C., and five Maryland counties were served last year by five divisions of service:

In Finding Help,

A COUPLE BECAME PART OF A FAMILY OF SUPPORT

Cindy and Marvin arrived in the United States from El Salvador four years ago with big plans for their future.

They both had jobs at restaurants, working hard to provide for their two teenage children. They also were saving whatever money they could to one day buy a house. But their dreams came to a screeching halt when the pandemic hit and shut down restaurants across D.C. They were laid off and didn't know how they would pay the rent on their apartment or feed their children, let alone save for a house.

Alone in a new country without family to help, they didn't know how they would make it through the crisis.

"My story starts when I met the staff of Catholic Charities when I was working as a volunteer in food distribution, and I learned about services they provide for the community," Cindy says.

The family was embraced by the staff of the Spanish Catholic Center, who worked quickly to connect them to support services. They advised Cindy and Marvin on filing unemployment claims, filling out job applications and managing their finances. More importantly, they provided the couple with weekly food packages to ensure the family wouldn't go hungry.

"I feel like we are part of a family," Marvin says of the community he and Cindy found at the center. "In the beginning, we didn't know what to do. But now we've been given so much support and guidance."

Grateful for the support they received, the couple continues to volunteer at the center, helping staff organize the 1,000 pounds of food it receives from the Capital Area Food Bank every Friday to stock the shelves of the center’s food pantry.

Julieta Machado, director of immigrant support services, also tapped them to serve as unofficial taste testers, asking them to review food items she is considering for grocery packages at the center’s Wednesday food pantry distribution.

Machado says that Cindy and Marvin are excellent, collaborative volunteers. Their actions illustrate a strong desire to move their lives forward to become self-sufficient, she says.

Cindy has completed the center’s Latinos in Finance program. “They gave me advice about what I have to do in a job interview, and they helped me with my resume,” Cindy said of the bank teller training program. Marvin is working as a courier for a restaurant while exploring opportunities in construction.

The couple has become a support system for their friends and neighbors in need, sharing information they receive and referring them to Machado for help.

Despite the challenges they’ve faced during the pandemic, Cindy and Marvin remain positive because they’re healthy, happy and very well fed.

“ We are thankful to have help and people to show us the way. - Marvin

COMPASS

HELPS MAN NAVIGATE THE PATH TO FINDING A HOME

More than anything, Deon Brown wanted a place to call home.

The lifelong D.C. resident lost transitional housing after a kidney transplant and the inability to work put him behind on the rent. He fell on hard times. But having a home was central to his commitment to his daughter. So, when Sister Mary Louise Wessell of Catholic Charities referred him to the COMPASS program, he went all in.

COMPASS is a neighborhood-based team of social workers and social work interns who, through the transformative power of relationship-building, help residents of the District's Wards 7 and 8 reach their goals.

For Brown, his goal was clear: find affordable senior housing.

To reach that goal, Brown and his COMPASS partner met once a week — and often more — to set short-term goals and track accomplishments. "It gave me a sense of hope," he says. "It allowed me to know that my life would change."

After determining which neighborhoods he preferred, he worked to identify potential apartment complexes, filled out housing applications, toured possibilities and talked with property managers.

"Affordable housing, it seems like a simple task. But it's very hard to find affordable housing now," says Bi'Anncha Andrews, Brown's COMPASS partner.

Being a part of COMPASS, Brown says, is "a family kind of gathering. We all work together. You have to do your part; they do their part. We come together as a team, and we strive for our goals. In doing so, it's not always easy. But you hang in there and keep the faith that it will work out."

“ It changed my life, my hope, my spirit.

- Deon Brown

Home

Brown was diligent in completing tasks, even taking an eight-hour course to receive an inclusionary zoning certificate from the Department of Housing and Community Development's affordable housing program. "He did the work. He put forth his best effort. He stayed dedicated," Andrews says.

Just as he turned 62 earlier this year, Brown — who had over the years battled health problems, experienced homelessness and sought a true place to call home — moved into a one-bedroom apartment in Northeast D.C.

As he looks out over the balcony of an eighth-floor apartment that he calls a small palace, Brown feels a sense of gratitude and gratefulness. "I've been through a lot. I worked through some ups and downs," he says, adding that his success came from "being patient, believing in God and knowing that everything's going to be OK."

"It means the world to me to be in my own bed and be able to have my daughter come over to talk and have dinner."

76 members were welcomed to COMPASS with the help of 9 volunteers who dedicated 4,302 hours to the program's goals.

Dear Shelter Staff,

I would like to thank you for all of the important work you are doing for other people during this pandemic. Without you, a lot more people would be homeless during this pandemic and a lot more vulnerable to the virus. You should be proud of what you're doing, because not only are you comforting people during these times, you may also be saving their lives. Every single person working to help people in need deserve a lot more recognition and appreciation than they get. Thank you for everything you have done, and I wish you luck while helping people during the pandemic.

Financial Education

MAKES AN INVESTMENT IN THE FUTURE

“It’s a real sense of accompaniment.” That’s how David Burkey, CPA, describes his experience volunteering with the Financial Stability Network.

A co-worker encouraged the 28-year-old audit manager at KPMG to join the network in 2016, shortly after the program’s launch. He soon became a financial mentor, helping people gain control of their finances by setting attainable goals and learning the basics of personal finance.

The network, with the help of volunteers like Burkey, has expanded its services during its four-year history. Tax-preparation services, and financial education and coaching were provided to 785 low- and moderate-income clients during the past year.

With his guidance, Burkey’s mentees have established their first budgets, paid down debt and saved money for the future. But more than providing financial advice, Burkey has established real long-term relationships with his mentees, seeing them through major life changes.

“One of my mentees now has a baby,” Burkey says. “I’ve been encouraging her to manage her finances around major life events. She wants to go to nursing school, so we’re working together to establish a plan to make that possible.”

volunteers contributed 2,009 hours of service to the Financial Stability Network.

Just before the pandemic hit, Burkey committed to helping in another way. He became a certified tax preparer with the network as part of the IRS's Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program, which provides free tax preparation for low-income people.

After training in January, he saw tax clients every Saturday in February. But his role as a mentor didn't change, as he offered guidance on getting the highest returns and minimizing a larger future tax bill. When the pandemic shut down the area, the network's VITA volunteers transitioned to online consultations.

"It was nerve-racking at first," he says. "But there's a great support system to help ensure accuracy. We also try to make these conversations less of a purely transactional relationship and more of an investment in the future."

When the extended filing deadline arrived in July, Burkey had worked with about 25 clients of various ages, circumstances and incomes. Some clients had steady jobs. Other were homeless. Some were single moms working multiple jobs.

But to Burkey, each client was someone who needed help, and he was proud to work with them. With the network's help, clients who earned less than $55,000 a year received tax refunds of about $1,500 on average.

“ Working with the Financial Stability Network is about real-world practices. But walking clients through the process shows what it means to accompany them—walking with our clients and being there for them.

Creating a Legacy of Impact

JOE & CINDY DEMPSEY,
MEMBERS OF THE GOOD SAMARITAN SOCIETY

Joe Dempsey stood tall in the vast parking lot, signaling to hundreds of cars as they snaked their way to a distribution point for free food and meals. With his son nearby, Joe directed food assistance as it was given out to a community struggling with the economic fallout of the pandemic.

To his son, Kevin, this was more than a day to help others who were less fortunate. “We’ve known that the work he’s done throughout his career and life was always meaningful and impactful,” Kevin says of his father. “But it was great to see that come to life. The people were so thankful.”

Joe, director of special projects at Catholic Charities, has dedicated a lifetime to non-profit leadership, first as a teacher and then as dean of students at Gonzaga College High School and later as executive director of the Order of Malta. He now works closely with Msgr. John Enzler on outreach to communities in Prince George’s County and Southern Maryland, including overseeing community food distributions.

Beyond work, Joe and his wife, Cindy, have always been committed to community service to assist the poor and vulnerable, a pillar of Catholic social teaching. Joe and his sons, Michael, Kevin and Patrick, have been loyal volunteers with the Greg Gannon Food Drive since its inception, propelling the drive to parishes across the archdiocese. During the pandemic, the three sons have volunteered with their dad at Catholic Charities’ food distributions.

Joe and Cindy believe it’s essential to teach younger generations about the importance of giving back. For several years at Christmas, all three sons made gifts to Catholic Charities and three other organizations instead of buying presents for their parents.

This is “something they are committed to doing even when I am not watching,” says Joe, who is now guiding his sons on estate planning, starting with annual gifts and engagement with the mission of Catholic Charities.

Seeing the growing population of those who are struggling with food insecurity and access to resources, “including Catholic Charities in our estate planning will ensure we can support the organization at a much higher level than we can in our lifetime,” he says. “Getting my sons involved has engaged them in the agency’s critical work and inspired them to begin planning their own estates.”

“Whether it’s through our own Catholic upbringing or following our father’s work,” Kevin says, “it’s been engrained in us that not only is your faith important but acting upon that faith when you’re in a position to help others is always very important, too.”

The Dempsey family’s collaborative approach to giving back has been an inspiration to other families who look at philanthropy as a family value and an activity shared between generations.

As planned gift donors, the Dempseys are members of the Catholic Charities Good Samaritan Society, a group of people who, through their wills and other deferred gifts, have committed to ensuring that the agency can provide for future emergency food and medical care, legal assistance, behavioral health management and assistance for those with developmental disabilities. We rely on our Good Samaritan Society members to safeguard Catholic Charities’ ability to serve others for many years to come.

“ It is very important to us to give both time and money to charities we believe in and really care about.

Annual leadership giving circles — Founder's Circle, President's Circle and Circle of Hope — honor the commitment and cumulative giving of our most generous supporters. They make possible the programs and services that distinguish Catholic Charities. These members are recognized with invitations to private events and acknowledged in our publications for their contributions of at least $10,000 annually. Partners in Hope are donors with a cumulative giving of between $1,000 and $9,999. They receive subscriptions to our publications and invitations to service opportunities. To learn more, contact us at giving@cc-dc.org.

Members of the Living Faith Society help sustain the work of Catholic Charities through their ongoing, monthly support. Members who make a recurring gift receive a subscription to our publications and invitations to service opportunities and other gatherings. They take pride in knowing that their support helps Catholic Charities be more effective and, thus, expand the possibilities for our positive impact on people in need.

The 83.33 Society recognizes emerging philanthropists whose volunteerism and recurring donations of $83.33 a month over five years distinguish members as the next generation of giving. Members receive an invitation to an exclusive event hosted by the society's chairs and have access to special volunteer opportunities and networking events.
